Contested, Congested and Competitive: US Space Security Posture and Military Space Forces: Hampton Roads International Security Quarterly, Vol. XI, Nr. 3 Sidney E. Dean (Editor)

Outer space has become the new strategic high ground. Whether commercial or military, space assets are vital to everything from weather forecasting to communications to strategic and tactical reconnaissance. Western nations must be concerned as rival (and sometimes overtly hostile) actors increase their own space presence. No nation is more dependent on space for its national security and economic welfare than the technology-oriented, globally active USA. This issue of HRISQ will focus on US space security policy and space strategy, and examine the armed forces components dedicated to space operations.
